

CityMag

Established in 2013 as a way to empower the New Adelaide, CityMag has built a capacity in our audience to be leaders and lovers of this city. We believe the stories a society tells itself become its reality and therefore it must be our mission to make Adelaide's story a great one.

CityMag

Sees and supports what's good in Adelaide

We've been helping the good things grow for seven years now

Adelaide is a lot different today compared to seven years ago. Over 200 new small bars and eateries have opened since we started publishing, but – interestingly – only the ones we've written about still operate today.

There were people in our city who were against the small bar licence, against the oval, the footbridge, and against extending the tram line. There were those who would never believe a Pulteney Street company could make movies for Hollywood or that dresses designed on North Terrace would be sold and worn on streets around the world. But we covered it all in our first issue and we continue to cover and support good businesses today.

Adelaide is full of people who don't want to see us develop, or see new ideas get up, and a new narrative take over from the old.

Those people are not CityMag readers though. Our readers and advertisers only want to see the good things in Adelaide grow.

We've grown too!

CityMag

The voice of city users between 25-45 years of age, CityMag touches its audience in digital and print formats. CityMag has continued to report on the city every day since the COVID-19 pandemic struck, and to the credit of Adelaide's innovative and entrepreneurial business owners, green shoots are already beginning to emerge.

In 2020, CityMag too continues to grow. The digital newsletter is now delivered to our 48,000 subscribers twice a week on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons, up from one pre-COVID. Our average monthly online readers has seen an increase from 50,000 to 74,000* and after pausing our print in March, we're busy preparing for our second edition back; the popular Festival guide, scheduled to be published in February 2021.

Large format, stunning design and beautiful photography

PRINT

CityMag is a full colour publication with heat-set print treatment to stop colour fade and ink bleed issues. The result is stunning images rendered bright and sharp in a super large format with high impact.

Oh, and it's FREE!

Pictured here is our February '20 Festival edition. In February and March, Adelaide is overrun with things to do - this edition was all about guiding our 40,000 print readers through thousands of choices and giving them advice they can trust and follow.

How print works for our clients:

1. It gives them CONTROL

You have the option to control where your advertisement goes and what content it sits opposite

2. They get BIG IMPACT

Print advertising cannot be ignored as readers thumb through the magazine from left to right and hit every page

3. They become part of a MOVEMENT

Adelaide is changing and there are new opportunities and new markets constantly emerging. We put our advertising partners in touch with the tastemakers and thought leaders in our state

South Australians turn to CityMag's reporting, both in print and online, to learn about the latest trends in hospitality, arts and business.

CityMag has reported on the city every day since the COVID-19 pandemic struck, and to the credit of Adelaide's innovative and entrepreneurial business owners, green shoots are already beginning to emerge.

This will be the focus of CityMag's first print edition of the post-COVID era – a magazine in dedication to the businesses and consumers who kept the city's metabolism moving throughout hibernation.

The city's continuing recovery will need new ideas and new energy. For this we turn to bright young minds of Solstice Media's 40 Under 40. In a dedicated 40 Under 40 section, we will speak with emerging leaders from South Australia's business community, who come from a range of industries and sectors, all with a common drive to see our city and state reach its full potential.

There'll be plenty of the inquisitive and informed CityMag you already know, with features on the best new food and drink, an exploration of the State Government's plans to make Adelaide a Magnet City, and we'll use Adelaide's last six months of adaptation as a lens to forecast our stronger future.

No matter what the world looks like in two months' time, CityMag print will be your user's guide to a post-pandemic Adelaide.
